A large white bulletin board is mounted on a light-colored wall. It is covered with approximately 12 official documents, each secured with a colorful pushpin (orange, red, green, blue, yellow). The documents are printed on white paper and contain dense text, including headers, body text, and official stamps or signatures. Some documents have circular stamps, likely from a government or institutional office. The board is organized in a somewhat grid-like fashion, with documents of varying sizes and orientations.
